Teaching Children to be Problem Solvers

Whether it's a toy-related conflict, a tough math equation, or negative peer pressure, kids of ALL ages face problems and challenges on a daily basis.

As parents or teachers, we can't always be there to solve every problem for our children. In fact, this isn't our job. Our job is to TEACH our children how to solve problems by themselves. This way, they can become confident, independent, and successful individuals.

Instead of giving up or getting frustrated when they encounter a challenge, kids with problem-solving skills manage their emotions, think creatively, and persist until they find a solution.

So HOW do you teach problem-solving skills to kids?

Well, it depends on their age. As cognitive abilities and the size of the child's challenges grow/evolve over time, so should your approach to teaching problem-solving skills.

Tell me
 & I forget
 Teach me
 & I may remember
 Involve me
 & I learn

-Benjamin Franklin

More problem strategies will be included each month in the newsletter!!

Information:

1. Drills. Throughout the year your children are involved in a variety of drills to prepare them in case of emergency. They include: fire drills, evacuation drills, shelter in place, lock out and down drills.

The teachers provide students with age appropriate explanations of the drills. We had our first off-site evacuation drill on Friday, October 26th and the students did a great job!!

2. Parent teacher conferences begin on November 29th and run through December 13th.

Please be sure to keep your appointment with the teacher. Come prepared with questions for the teacher as well as inform the teacher of things going on in your child's life that might be impacting school.
